Visiting Railway and Bus Station

I have visited both the bus station and the railway station. One is different from the other. Of course, there are some similarities. During the last World Cup cricket match, I traveled by bus from Alfadanga to Dhaka with my father. We went to Dhaka to watch the World Cup cricket match. I also traveled by train. My grandfather lives in Sylhet. So I go to Sylhet twice a year to see him with my family. We travel to Sylhet by train. I have found some similarities between the bus station and the railway station. 95

Both the stations are crowded. We had to wait in both stations. Passengers are busy with their luggage to reach their respective destinations. Everyone collects tickets to secure their seat. Hawkers try to attract passengers to sell their goods. Passengers will buy products according to their choice. Both the stations have toilet facilities. 53

There are several differences between the two stations. In terms of size, the railway station is much larger than the bus stand. The railway station has multiple compartments connected to the train. But there is no such opportunity on the bus. Passenger capacity is higher in railways. 47

Traveling by bus is more expensive than traveling by rail. A railway station is much dirtier. But a bus stand is more or less clean.

There are differences in the collection of train tickets. But the train journey was more comfortable and relaxing than the bus journey. 47
